Read all over

Newstead Wood School

Library

Bulletin

If you would like to renew a book, or have any comments/ queries, please don't hesitate to contact me at library@newsteadwood.co.uk

Happy reading! – Miss Mullins

Follow us on Twitter: @NWSLibrary

Follow us on Instagram:

@nwschoollibrary

See what we're reading on Storygraph: https://app.thestorygraph.com/profile/newsteadlibrary

View our Amazon Wishlist:

https://www.amazon.co.uk/hz/wishlist/ls/31UREQLIV3HCI?ref =wl share

Access our library software from any device, anywhere, using this URL: https://uk.accessit.online/nws00

To log in, enter your school email address in the Borrower ID field, and your school password in the password field. Use Accessit to view your loans; reserve books when you're unable to come to the library; search the library stock; write book reviews, and more.

"Well, you never knew exactly how much space you occupied in people's lives." — F Scott Fitzgerald

The Overstory by Richard Powers

The Overstory is a sweeping, impassioned work of activism and resistance that is also a stunning evocation of - and paean to - the natural world. From the roots to the crown and back to the seeds, Richard Powers's twelfth novel unfolds in concentric rings of interlocking fables that range from antebellum New York to the late twentieth-century Timber Wars of the Pacific Northwest and beyond. There is a world alongside ours—vast, slow, interconnected, resourceful, magnificently inventive, and almost invisible to us. This is the story of a handful of people who learn how to see that world and who are drawn up into its unfolding catastrophe.

Inferno by Dan Brown

Harvard professor of symbology Robert Langdon awakens in an Italian hospital, disoriented and with no recollection of the past thirty-six hours, including the origin of the macabre object hidden in his belongings. With a relentless female assassin trailing them through Florence, he and his resourceful doctor, Sienna Brooks, are forced to flee. Embarking on a harrowing journey, they must unravel a series of codes, which are the work of a brilliant scientist whose obsession with the end of the world is matched only by his passion for one of the most influential masterpieces ever written, Dante Alighieri's The Inferno.

nded for older readers)

Culture Smart: Japan - The Essential Guide to Customs and Culture by Paul

Culture Smart! provides essential information on attitudes, beliefs and behaviour in different countries, ensuring that you arrive at your destination aware of basic manners, common courtesies, and sensitive issues. These concise guides tell you what to expect, how to behave, and how to establish a rapport with your hosts. This inside knowledge will enable you to steer clear of embarrassing gaffes and mistakes, feel confident in unfamiliar situations, and develop trust, friendships, and successful business relationships.

The Summer I Turned Pretty by Jenny Han (Books 1-3)

The Summer I Turned Pretty by Jenny Han

Belly measures her life in summers. Everything good, everything magical happens between the months of June and August. Winters are simply a time to count the weeks until the next summer, a place away from the beach house, away from Susannah, and most importantly, away from Jeremiah and Conrad. They are the boys that Belly has known since her very first summer—they have been her brother figures, her crushes, and everything in between. But one summer, one terrible and wonderful summer, the more everything changes, the more it all ends up just the way it should have been all along.

It's Not Summer Without You by Jenny Han

It used to be that Belly counted the days until summer, until she was back at Cousins Beach with Conrad and Jeremiah. But not this year. Not after Susannah got sick again and Conrad stopped caring. Everything that was right and good has fallen apart, leaving Belly wishing summer would never come. But when Jeremiah calls saying Conrad has disappeared, Belly knows what she must do to make things right again. And it can only happen back at the beach house, the three of them together, the way things used to be. If this summer really and truly is the last summer, it should end the way it started—at Cousins Beach.

We'll Always Have Summer by Jenny Han

It's been two years since Conrad told Belly to go with Jeremiah. She and Jeremiah have been inseparable ever since, even attending the same college—only, their relationship hasn't exactly been the happily ever after Belly had hoped it would be. And when Jeremiah makes the worst mistake a boy can make, Belly is forced to question what she thought was true love. Does she really have a future with Jeremiah? Has she ever gotten over Conrad? It's time for Belly to decide, once and for all, who has her heart forever.

World Hobbit Day - 22nd September

With the publication of The Hobbit in 1937, J. R. R. Tolkien introduced us to the fictional race of people by the same name. Hobbits are about half the height of an average human, live barefooted, have vast appetites, and dwell in underground houses. World Hobbit Day is celebrated on the 22nd of September as this is the agreed canonical birthday of hobbits Bilbo and Frodo Baggins, characters from Tolkien's The Hobbit and The Lord of the Rings. There was originally some indecision over the date as the fictional Shire calendar, and our Gregorian calendar have some discrepancies and Bilbo's actual birthday would fall somewhere between the 12th and 14th of September. People have been known to celebrate World Hobbit Day by throwing parties with food and fireworks, inspired by Bilbo's birthday party from The Fellowship of the Ring, or by walking around barefoot.

Hobbit Facts:

- There isn't a single female character in The Hobbit, and the only woman mentioned by name is Bilbo's mother, Belladonna Took. Crew working on the first Hobbit film used so much gold paint creating the dragon Smaug's lair, that they exhausted supplies in
- Australasia and had to send to Germany for more. In Tolkien's first draft of The Hobbit, Gandalf the wizard was called Bladorthin.
- On their birthdays, Hobbits of The Shire give away gifts rather than receiving them.
- Tolkien related to Hobbits, saying in a 1958 letter: "I am in fact a Hobbit in all but size. I like gardens, trees, and unmechanized farmlands; I smoke a pipe, and like good plain food... I like, and even dare to wear in these dull days, ornamental waistcoats. I am fond of mushrooms ... have a very simple sense of humour ... I go to bed late and get up late (when possible). I do not travel

The Hobbit by J.R.R. Tolkien

Bilbo Baggins is a hobbit who enjoys a comfortable, unambitious life, rarely travelling further than the pantry of his hobbithole in Bag End. But his contentment is disturbed when the wizard, Gandalf, and a company of thirteen dwarves arrive on his doorstep one day, to whisk him away on a journey 'there and back again'. They have a plot to raid the treasure hoard of Smaug the Magnificent, a large and very dangerous dragon...

When Our Worlds Collided Wins 2023 YA Book Prize

When Our Worlds Collided has been announced as the winner of the 2023 YA (Young Adult) Book Prize. The book, already the winner of the Jhalak Children's and Young Adult Prize, was described by Gary Deane, Waterstones' national children's events co-ordinator as "A raw, powerful, and thought-provoking coming of age story that is tender, compassionate, and full of hope." Caroline Carpenter, the chair of judges for the YA Book Prize said, "Though this is only Danielle Jawando's second novel, she has already proven herself to be a powerful author of deeply affecting and authentic stories and a rising star of YA."

Danielle Jawando was crowned the winner of the award at this year's Edinburgh International Book Festival. She will receive £2.000 in prize monev

Coming Soon to the Library: When Our Worlds Collided by Danielle Jawando When fourteen-year-old Shaq is stabbed outside of a busy shopping centre in Manchester, three teenagers from very different walks of life are unexpectedly brought together. What follows flips their worlds upside down and makes Chantelle, Jackson, and

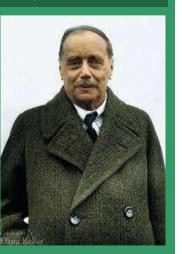

On This Day in History... The Birth of H.G. Wells, 21st September 1866

Marc question the deep-rooted prejudice and racism that exists within the police, the media, and the rest of society.

Born in Bromley, Kent, Herbert George Wells was a prolific writer in many genres. Over his lifetime he wrote more than fifty novels and dozens of short stories, as well as non-fiction works, spanning social commentary, politics, history, science fiction, and more. His science fiction novels are so well regarded that he is often referred to as 'the father of science fiction.' Wells wrote such classics as The Time Machine, The Invisible Man, and The Island of Doctor Moreau, stories still constantly referenced and riffed on in the modern era.

When The Time Machine was published in 1895, it met immediate acclaim and became the first of Wells' 'scientific romances' (the genre now commonly known as science fiction). He was also lauded as a social prophet, as in his writings he seemed to foretell future events such as the splitting of the atom, space travel, and aerial warfare. He is also credited with predicting the invention of the internet, the tank, and the satellite television.

After World War One, Wells became an advocate for peace and human rights, publishing several anti-war manifestos. He died in Regent's Park in 1946, at the age of 79. His ashes were scattered into the English Channel at Old Harry Rocks in Dorset.

The Time Machine by H.G. Wells

When a Victorian scientist propels himself in the year 802,701 AD, he is initially delighted to find that suffering has been replaced by beauty, contentment and peace. Entranced at first by the Eloi, an elfin species descended from man, he soon realises that this beautiful people are simply remnants of a once-great culture - now weak and childishly afraid of the dark. They have every reason to be afraid: in deep tunnels beneath their paradise lurks another race descended from numanity - the sinister Morlocks. And when the scientist's time machine vanishes, it becomes clear he must search these tunnels if he is ever to return to his own era.

The Island of Doctor Moreau by H.G. Wells

Adrift in a dinghy, Edward Prendick, the single survivor from the good ship Lady Vain, is rescued by a vessel carrying an unusual cargo—a menagerie of savage animals. Nursed to recovery by their keeper Montgomery, who gives him dark medicine that tastes of blood, Prendick soon finds himself stranded upon an uncharted island in the Pacific with his rescuer and the beasts. There, he meets the sinister Dr. Moreau—a brilliant scientist whose notorious experiments in vivisection have caused him to abandon the civilized world. It soon becomes clear that he has continued to develop these experiments with truly horrific results

Authors Recommend Summer Page Turners

In July, The Observer asked various authors to recommend some summer reads to its audience. As we cling on to the tail end of summer, have a look at the books authors such as Eleanor Catton, Caleb Azumah Nelson, Marian Keys, Sophie Mackintosh and RF Kuang suggest you pick up. The full list is diverse and contains classic fiction as well as new releases, but is very mystery-heavy. Eliza Clark (author of Penance and Boy Parts) recommended Umberto Eco's historical mystery The Name of the Rose, while Jennifer Egan (author of The Candy House and A Visit from the Goon Squad) recommended modern murder mystery The Maid by Nita Prose, as well as classic murder mystery The Murder of Roger Ackroyd by Agatha Christie. Click on the link below to see the full list.

View the full list here

JAPAN

Yellowface by Rebecca F Kuang Athena Liu is a literary darling and June Hayward is literally nobody. When Athena dies in a freak accident, June steals her unpublished manuscript and publishes it as her own under the ambiguous name Juniper Song. But as evidence threatens June's stolen success, she will discover exactly how far she will go to keep what she thinks

The Name of the Rose by Umberto Eco

The year is 1327. Benedictines in a wealthy Italian abbey are suspected of heresy. and Brother William of Baskerville arrives to investigate. When his delicate mission is suddenly overshadowed by seven bizarre deaths. Brother William turns detective. His tools are the logic of Aristotle, the theology of Aquinas, the empirical insights of Roger Bacon—all sharpened to a glistening edge by wry humor and a ferocious curiosity. He collects evidence, deciphers secret symbols and coded manuscripts, and igs into the eerie labyrinth of the abbey, where "the most interesting things hap

The Murder of Roger Ackroyd by Agatha Christie

The peaceful English village of King's Abbot is stunned. The widow Ferrars dies from an overdose of Veronal. Not twenty-four hours later, Roger Ackroyd—the man she had planned to marry—is murdered. It is a baffling case involving blackmail and death that taxes Hercule Poirot's "little grey cells" before he reaches one of the most startling conclusions of his career.

The Maid by Nita Prose

Molly the maid is all alone in the world. A nobody. She's used to being invisible in her job at the Regency Grand Hotel, plumping pillows and wiping away the grime, dust and secrets of the guests passing through. She's just a maid – why should anyone take notice? But Molly is thrown into the spotlight when she discovers an infamous guest, Mr Black, very dead in his bed. This isn't a mess that can be easily cleaned up. And as Molly becomes embroiled in the hunt for the truth, following the clues whispering in the hallways of the Regency Grand, she discovers a power she never knew was there. She's just a maid – but what can she see that others overlook?

NAME

On This Day in History... The Death of Wilkie Collins, 23rd September 1889

William Wilkie Collins, born in 1824, was a novelist and playwright best known for his novels The Woman in White (1859) and The Moonstone (1868), the latter of which is commonly credited with establishing the ground rules of the modern detective novel, and is arguably the earliest example of the police procedural genre (a subgenre of detective fiction that emphasizes the investigative procedure of police officers, police detectives, or law enforcement agencies as the

Collins lived an unconventional Bohemian lifestyle, travelling frequently, wearing flamboyant clothes, and rejecting the concept of marriage. He was friends with Charles Dickens, with whom he regularly collaborated, as well as many other writers prominent in society at the time. Dickens assisted Collins in his career, publishing The Woman in White for the first time in his journal All the Year Round. The novel was serialised and published in the journal between November 1859 and August 1860. The story was a sensation, and many commodities such as perfumes, cloaks, and bonnets were named after it in the period following its publication. It's said that poet William Thackeray was "engrossed [by the story] from morning to sunset."

The Moonstone received a much less enthusiastic reception from Dickens as well as from literary critics of the age, though it has stood the test of time and is one of Collins' most famous novels.

Collins passed away in 1889 and is buried in Kensal Green Cemetery, London. His tombstone bears the inscription "author of The Woman in White."

The Moonstone by Wilkie Collins

The Moonstone, a priceless Indian diamond which had been brought to England as spoils of war, is given to Rachel Verrinder on her eighteenth birthday. That very night, the stone is stolen. Suspicion then falls on a hunchbacked housemaid, on Rachel's cousin Franklin Blake, on a troupe of mysterious Indian jugglers, and on Rachel herself. The phlegmatic Sergeant Cuff is called in, and with the help of Betteredge, the Robinson Crusoe-reading loguacious steward, the mystery of the missing stone is ingeniously solved.

On This Day in History... The Birth of Kate Adie, 19th September 1945

Kate Adie is an English journalist best known for her work as a war zone correspondent. She began her career working for BBC Radio Durham before moving to BBC national television news in 1979. Her big break came when she was the first on the scene when the Special Air Service broke up the Iranian Embassy siege in 1980. Adie reported live and unscripted to one of the largest news audiences ever while crouched behind a car door. She went on to report on huge stories such as the serial killer Denis Nilsen, the Troubles in Northern Ireland, the Tiananmen Square protests, the Lockerbie bombing, the Gulf War, the Rwandan genocide, and the 2000 war in Sierra Leone. While working in Libya, Adie was shot at point blank range by a Libyan army commander after refusing to act as an intermediary between Libyan and British governments - luckily, she suffered no permanent harm.

Adie worked in so many dangerous places and situations that it was commonly said that "a good decision is getting on a plane at an airport where Kate Adie is getting off."

In 2003, Adie retired from the BBC and went on to work as a freelance journalist. She's currently an ambassador for SSAFA, the UK's oldest military charity, and the medical charity Overseas Plastic Surgery

Corsets To Camouflage: Women and War by Kate Adie

Uniform is universally seen as both a stamp of authority and of official acceptance. But the sight of a roles in combat, the status implied by uniform is often regarded as contrary to the general perception of womanhood. This study of the image of uniformed women, both in conflict and in civilian roles throughout the 20th century examines the extraordinary range of jobs that uniformed women have performed, from nursing to the armed services. Through complementary correspondence and many personal stories Kate Adie brings the enormous and often unsung achievements of women in uniform to life and looks at how far women have come in a century which, for them, began restricted in corsets and has ended on the battlefield in camouflage.

The Kindness of Strangers: The Autobiography by Kate Adie

in 1969. These memoirs encompass her reporting from, inter alia, Northern Ireland, the Middle East, Tiananmen Square and, of course, the Gulf War of 1991. From the siege at the Iranian embassy which shot her to public acclaim, to an alarming range, from the chaos and mayhem of desert warfare to Gracie Field's bizarre funeral, Kate has cooly kept us in touch through her reasoned and level reporting. Although an intensely private person, Kate Adie also divulges how, despite being sent to outlandish places at a moment's notice, she's maintained her interest in sailing, singing, and theatre, and what it's like to be a woman in a man's world.

Kiran Millwood Hargrave and Tom de Freston Win James Cropper Wainwright Prize for Children's Writing on Nature and Conservation

The winner of the 2023 James Cropper Wainwright Prize for Children's Writing on Nature and Conservation was announced at the 10th Anniversary celebrations of the Prize in Kendal in the Lake District, the home of much-loved nature writer Alfred Wainwright, for whom the prize is named.

Bestselling author Kiran Millwood Hargrave and illustrator Tom de Freston from Oxford won the prize for Leila and the Blue Fox, the story of a young fox and a girl on an unforgettable Arctic adventure, based on the true story of a fox who walked two thousand miles from Norway to Canada in seventy-six days. Mark Funnell, Chair and Communication and Campaign Director at the National Trust, said: "The interplay between Kiran's profoundly affecting writing and Tom's hauntingly beautiful illustrations is uniquely potent, plunging us into the intertwined worlds of family relationships and nature obsession with a visceral impact that readers won't forget."

Kiran and Tom win a share of the £10,000 prize fund, alongside the winners of the prizes for Nature Writing and Writing on Conservation. Each winner also received a specially commissioned original artwork by dried flower embroiderer, Olga Prinku.

The Island at the End of Everything by Kiran Millwood Hargrave

Ami lives with her mother on an island where the sea is as blue as the sky. It's all she knows and loves, but the arrival of malicious government official Mr Zamora changes her world forever: her island is to be incertain future in an orphanage. There she meets a honey-eyed girl named for butterflies, and together they discover a secret that will lead her on an adventure home. Ami must go back to the island of no

The Deathless Girls by Kiran Millwood Hargrave

They say the thirst of blood is like a madness - they must sate it. Even with their own kin. On the eve of her divining, the day she'll discover her fate, seventeen-year-old Lil and her twin sister Kizzy are captured and enslaved by the cruel Boyar Valcar, taken fai inwelcoming castle kitchens, Lil is comforted when she meets Mira, a fellow slave who she feels drawn to in a way she doesn't understand. But she also learns about the Dragon, a mysterious and terrifying figure of myth and legend who takes girls as gifts. They may not have had their divining day, but the girls will still discover their fate...